STARVING, THEY MAY LOSE HOME

Mrs. Hooper and Four Children, in Dire Desitution, Ill and Freezing, Must Pay Rent To-day or Be Dispossessed.

Hidden away in two miserable rooms on the ground floor of the tenement, No. 35 East Ninety-seventh street, Mrs. Julia Hooper and her four children are suffering the torments of sickness, hunger and cold. For days they have been almost without food, and it is more than a month since they have eaten a square meal. Their fire went out two weeks ago, when the last pile of coal, used ever so sparingly, burned to ashes. Weak and ailing, they have huddled together in their chill home and to-night even this cheerless shelter may be taken from them. For their month's rent, $5, due Dec. 21, is still unpaid, and the janitor will eject them if he does not receive the money by this evening. The poor mother is prostrated with malarial fever and asthma. She lies upon a couch, propped up with pillows, gasping for breath. Fourteen-year-old Tessie, herself a wreck from bronchitis and lack of nourishment, cares for her baby brother, a pitiful child, whose wasted body and winced little face, dark with starvation, breaks the little mother's heart. The other daughter, Augusta, a pretty girl of fifteen, and the youngest sister, are out searching the crowded district for some place to go when dispossessed.

"It is so hard to find just two rooms," said Mrs. Hooper. "There are many places with four, for $12 a month, but we can never hope to pay so much as that."

Deserted by Father. The Hoopers' greater hardships began two months ago, when their drunken husband and father deserted them. They sold their furniture in falling from a car five years ago. The operation left the arm almost powerless. Dependent upon the two bright little boys, winners, the Hoopers managed to get along without falling into debt until four weeks ago, when Tessie and Gursie both fell ill with bronchitis. The cold and dampness of their rooms, where the sunlight never shines, made them easy

Save Your Pense at Home!

To-Morrow, Saturday, January 7th, we will deliver, without any cash down, A BEAUTIFUL 1905 MODEL Columbia Graphophone. This machine received Highest Honors at St. Louis World's Fair, just closed.

By All Who Hear these wonderful instruments play and sing it is conceded they are without a peer as a home entertainer.

By the Papers you already know these very Graphophones and the Columbia Exhibit not only received Highest Awards, but have equal to all other talking machine companies combined.

—for a short while—E and you're soon insured against the loss of the best music in the world. I time you enjoy all the music at home—and the Columbia plays it for you free.

24 Fl. (234 St.). Columbia Gold-Record Cylinder Records (guaranteed the very best Graphophone each 25c. Disc Records (Columbia) exchanged, one-half off for old.

victims of the disease. They were, of course, unable to work, and the meagre income of the family was cut off entirely. "The poor children were so sick, and I could not buy medicine, so the doctor stopped coming to see them. But somehow they got better. How I don't know, for I hadn't much to give them to eat and not the right sort of nourishing food," said Mrs. Hooper.

"But she said the bureau and the best chairs and her pretty pin to get good things for us," said Tessie. "Then just as we were getting better, mamma got the asthma and the fever again. She hadn't been eating anything, but saved almost everything for us."

Tell the Sad Story. The bare little rooms and the gaunt faces and lean figures of the girls tell only too meaningfully the story of the hard fight. The bed has no coverings; the stove, that should be blazing hot to dry out the damp rooms and make them habitable, has no fire; a rickety carriage serves the starving baby for a cradle. Upon the table is the day's meal, bought with the proceeds of the sale of a lamp. It is five cents' worth of noodles, plain and ungarlished, but saved for the time of greatest hunger. It was twenty-one years ago that Mrs. Hooper came to New York from Germany. She lived in Houston street and went to the Houston Street Public School. "I was so fond of my school work I wanted to study and be a teacher. But my mother was frightened because

TWO "COME-ONS" HELD.

Southerners Must Testify Against Green Goods Men.

James B. Eaton and his son William, of Aberneth, Ala., who were arrested in Jersey City with George Davis, who, the police say, is a bunco-steerer and about to take the Southerners to a "turning joint" in Brooklyn, were arraigned before Judge Ransom in Jersey City to-day.

The elder Eaton said he had been in correspondence with Brooklyn swindlers for some months and they had sent him a lot of one and two dollar bills, which they passed without trouble. He said he decided to pay $500 for $3,000 worth of the money and buy a sawmill with the money.

Davis refused to say anything. He was held for trial. The Eatons were placed under $1,000 bonds each as witnesses.
